PENDERY'S HISTORY

In 1870, DeWitt Clinton Pendery arrived in, then untamed, Fort Worth, Texas. He had been rattled and rolled in horse-drawn stage all the way from Cincinnati, Ohio. Local cowboys jeered his elegant appearance as he stepped onto the dusty street. He had a straight, easy stride, comfortable in his long frock coat and tall silk hat. (Note the top hat in the Pendery Logo). Then.. His thin lips twinged beneath the carefully waxed handle bar moustache. This, his only visible reaction to the whizzing crush and tearing cloth from the local's initiation bullet. The hat twisted then lay still in the dust. D.W.C.'s undaunted reaction, as he casually collected his belongings and continued his way, earned immediate popular respect. He joined the established family business and began the heritage we enjoy today. D.W.C. developed great interest in regional Texas seasonings. By 1890, he was selling his own unique blends to cafes, hotels and citizens far and near. Circulars carried on the Stage Line, were one of his means of advertising. DeWitt Clinton described and extolled his "Chiltomalone". Chiltomalone is the combination of ground select chile pods, cumin, oregano and other spices. This, a forerunner in world seasonings, enjoyed more than mere culinary flavor. DeWitt Clinton wrote of the medicinal benefits of his condiment and its acclamation from physicians. "The health giving properties of hot chile peppers have no equal. They give tone to the alimentary canal, regulating the functions, giving a natural appetite, and promoting health by action of the kidneys, skin and lymphatics."

Unparalleled seasoning inventions, Chile Powder (Blend) as one example, have firmly established DeWitt Clinton in spice annals. Each of the succeeding Pendery generations has followed this example of quality innovation. Here is the result. A select collection, continually broadened and refined, providing you with the satisfaction of the finest quality products, delivered by a family dedicated to personally serving our customers for over 141 years.
